

Iris sits very still for a long moment. Then she whispers a name into the night - her own name, Iris - because the star is small and quiet and easy to miss, and sometimes so is she. She smiles up at it. It is hers now.