

The little light pulses in her hands. She holds her breath. It is the smallest, kindest brightness she has ever seen.